Trip Introduction

Yala peak Climbing is a piece of the Langtang Himal which is situated in the focal piece of Nepal. Strolling through the thick woods and conventional ethnic settlements you achieve the great base camp of Yala top. The base camp of Yala Peak is Kyangjin Gompa (3749m/12300 ft). You will have staggering perspectives on Lantang Lirung (7246m), Lenpo Gang 7083m), Dorje Lakpa (6990m) and relentless Shishapangma (8027m) on the Tibetan side. Yala peak climbing trekking route ascends gradually through the rhododendron and oak forest. There are plenty of opportunities to get acclimatization and feel wilderness with the tolerable efforts. Our trail passes along Tamang and Tibetan settlement with their cultural diversities and living styles. Our journey to Yala Peak climbing leads from Kanjing Gompa (3850 m) and settle camp in a meadow at 4800 meters. Last 400 meters before summit, has ice and will be summit using our climbing equipment: Ice-axe, crampons and rope. Return to Base Camp and back to Kanjing gompa same day.

Yala Peak Climbing is a fabulous amateur's mountaineering trip, to one of Nepal's simpler trekking tops. Just toward the north of Kathmandu in the Langtang district, this 5500 meters pinnacle is arranged in a delightful valley of rich brushing fields and Tamang individuals. From Katmandu you drive to Dhunche or Syabrubesi, and following three-day's trekking you can reach Yala Peak. For more information please feel free to CONTACT US
